center-right coalition in the state as well—failed to win the 5 percent of the vote required to stay in the state assembly.

"The Hesse results clearly do not back what we are doing in Bonn," declared former interior minister Gerhart Baum, a left-leaning Free Democrat, after a heated seven-hour meeting today of the party's presidium.

for six hours, and afterward Kohl said they had agreed on a policy program. He did not give any details, however.

Speaking of the plan to unseat Schmidt, Kohl told reporters this evening: "I will only agree to this kind of a vote if I can be sure that this vote will be successful."

officials as not representative of the country's general mood.

Kohl argued that the election had been tilted by the "dreadful emotional pressure" related to events in Bonn and the Social Democrats' bitter campaign against the new coalition negotiations. Stoiber said it was a deviation, not a change in the general trend.

Soviets Arrest Four Scientists on Spying Charges

MOSCOW—Four Soviet scientists have been arrested on charges of spying for the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency, the newspaper Moskovskaya Pravda said yesterday, according to Washington Post correspondent Dusko Doder.

The disclosure came in a long attack on alleged U.S. intelligence-gathering activities in the Soviet Union, which the paper said focused on military-related technology and especially on the quality, quantity and deployment of the Soviet strategic nuclear forces.

The article, reflecting the current icy state of Soviet-American relations, appeared designed to discourage Soviet citizens from mingling with Americans. It singled out Soviet scientists and experts who were warned that the CIA was using visiting American scholars and experts to collect information.

he described the Soviets as the No. 1 menace to world peace.

His statements came as an indirect response to Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's televised speech Sunday calling for normalized relations with China.

Informed sources reported Zhao's comments in talks with visiting Japanese Premier Zenko Suzuki.

Argentine Seeks War Probe

BUENOS AIRES—The commander of Argentine ground troops who occupied the Falkland Islands earlier this year has demanded a probe of the role of military and political leaders in the war.

Brig. Gen. Americo Daher's call was in a letter to Army commander Cristino Nicolaides, extracts of which were published in the Argentine press over the weekend.

Daher criticizes Army leaders for accepting responsibility for the June 14 defeat when Britain recaptured the islands it had ruled for 149 years. He said the operations were suitable for air and naval operations yet the Army was taking the brunt of responsibility for the defeat.

Shcharansky's Hunger Strike

MOSCOW—Imprisoned Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky has begun an indefinite hunger strike to protest repeated confiscation of his mail, his mother, Ida Milgrom, told Western reporters. She said she feared her son could die from the effects of a prolonged hunger strike since he was still weak from six months of solitary confinement last year.

In Washington, the State Department deplored "the Soviet authorities' willful abuse of Mr. Shcharansky's rights which has led to this desperate decision."

Vatican Aide Replaced

VATICAN CITY—Archbishop

Paul Marcinkus, organizer of Pope John Paul II's previous foreign trips, has been replaced as coordinator of the papal visit to Spain, Vatican sources said.

Sources said the replacement of Marcinkus indicated growing concern among senior Vatican officials over his role as head of the Vatican bank, which has been linked with the collapsed Banco Ambrosiano.

British Labor Party Meets

BLACKPOOL, England—The Labor Party, divided by left-right bickering and slipping in the opinion polls after more than three years in opposition, voted 3-1 to approve party leader Michael Foot's proposal to exclude the extreme-left Militant Tendency group from its ranks.

The move, ratified on the opening day of Labor's annual conference, followed a speech in which Foot vowed to fight extremist factions.

Militant Tendency advocates nationalization of Britain's top 200 companies, abolition of the monarchy and withdrawal from NATO.
